READ TEXT AND FIND A TITLE

- ✘ Teenagers are often seen as rebels who have problems at home. They argue with their parents. They see their parents too strict. Their parents seem not to understand them. Then they look for support among their peers who are often not mature enough to give them the right piece of advice. They often help them get into more trouble by offering them alcohol and drugs. So parents should try to talk with their children about everything. They should obtain their confidence and should understand them.
